Sunday Fire

About 10:00 o'clock Sunday morning Mr. Avery went down to his take-shop for something, and smelling something burning he investigated and found that the north wall between the drugstore and the bakery was warm.

Mr. Snyder, Mr. Mitchell and fire chief Mr. Patterson were called, a fire alarm was not turned in, but the fire was put out by Mr. Coleman and the fire squad were right on hand. A hole was cut in the roof and on each side of the wall and the smouldering flames were put out by the use of chemicals.

As yet no one knows the cause of the fire. Mr. Taylor of Vermilion had put some insulation in that wall Friday and it is possible that this had something to do with it. Fire insurance inspectors are investigating today.

Pans For Arena Carnival Advance

A year ago this month—September 22nd to be exact—first sod for the P.M.C. Arena was turned. Early next month the Board of Trade intends to hold its first large indoor Thanksgiving Carnival and Dance in this fine building.

Plans are well advanced and various committees of the Board are busy with organization work.

Members present are to hold the event on Friday and Saturday, October 14 and 15. With the help of the Army about one third of the ice area will be floored for dancing and the rest will be used for concessions, exhibits, refreshment booths and stalls for produce. It is hoped to have an all night town dance and one evening and the swingsters on the other.

Rather than having one large door price it is the intention of the Committee to give away hundreds of dollars worth of smaller prizes in various contests, ticket draws and other events.

Plans are needed for all hockey activities during the coming winter, and to provide the area with some imported entertainment. The Committee is anxious to obtain help with this big undertaking and would be very happy to receive suggestions on added attractions for the carnival.

During the Presbytery meeting, Mrs. W. Taylor read an article entitled "What Are Our Churches Coming To?" Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. Harden were hostesses for the evening. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Phil May.

Town Topics

Now that Autumn is here again and most of the natives have returned to the daily grind from their various and sundry vacation haunts the Town is gradually falling back into its old routine again. The morning coffee sessions are rounding into shape, and the Hot Stove League is already talking about the coming winter season in the Arena and organizing rinks—and time off—for the numerous car bonpools around the country.

All of which indicates that another long year of work lies ahead before those precious two weeks off roll around again, and should, after the holidays, be tucked away in the basement and the storm windows are washed, give everyone a little time to think of Town Topics and the purpose of this little column.

If everyone attended the meetings of the Board of Trade as they should, it would be no need for such a column. These organizations are designed to keep people thinking about the Town and district, but unfortunately neither group has so far become that popular.

So the only alternative is to try, through this column, to provoke a little thought on local matters in an attempt to stir up a little civic pride in our growing town.

We hope from time to time to have you read amusing side-lights on our growing town as well as the less amusing problems that will be presented—because no matter how grim anything may seem there always seems to be a lighter side to it. We'll try to keep you posted on when the Board of Trade is up to and to touch on the more encouraging bits of legislation, etc., from the Town Hall.

We'll also try to stir up a little belief in this wouldn't be such a bad place after all if only a few more people would give their shoulders to the wheel and get it a prod in the right direction.

For the fact remains that for a town of this size we probably have less per capita up in the direction of public improvement than any town in Upper or Lower Slobovia. We all grumble about the many small annoyances about the clouds of dust, or the lack of public rest-rooms, or the condition of the public playground but damned if we can ever get our grumbling all in one bunch to put it over.

So this little column is dedicated to the theory that if everyone grumbled about the many small annoyances maybe we could start a movement in the right direction. Of course there'll be the old boggy thrown in at the same time to stir up public belief because everything can't possibly be bad. Whether it will work or not is a problem—but at least it's worth a try.

FORMER RESIDENT PASSES

Mrs. David Wesley Rutherford passed away at his home in Knoxville, U.S.A. on September 2nd, 1949 at the age of 87.

He will be remembered by old time residents of this district as he homesteaded at Greenhills in 1904 and took an active interest in establishing school, church service and Sunday School as well as in community life in general. In 1912 he moved with his family to the United States.

He leaves to mourn his widow, four sons and two daughters; also three brothers, Isaac of Greenhills, Frank in Manitoba, Clayton, and one sister Mrs. Marjorie of Houffville, Ont.

Mrs. Connie Scherger who passed away Sunday evening, September 4 was a native of Russia, coming to this country in the early 1900's. She was married to Mr. Ben Scherger in 1904, and took up residence on a farm near miles east of Regina, later moving to Cactus Lake, Alta., and then to Wainwright.

Mrs. Scherger had been confined to a wheel chair for the past eight years after having both legs amputated, and she has not been in good health for some time prior to her death.

Since her husband predeceased her seven years ago she has lived with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Renter in Wainwright.

URGE SAFE DRIVING NEAR SCHOOLS

The use of safe driving practices is always commendable, but this is especially so when driving down streets at times when a large number of children are present. The number of children on the streets about noon hour and at school closing time in our towns and villages is on the increase largely due to the bussing in of pupils from country schools.

The matter was brought up to the Town Council of Wainwright by the school board at their meeting last week, and was received in a favorable, though perhaps a little evasive fashion. However despite what local bodies may or may not do, all must agree that the final onus is on the driver of the motor vehicle and on the child who frequents the street. No amount of legislation, nor can any number of warning signs make careful drivers, unless the driver himself realizes the responsibility that rests on his shoulders when he is in charge of a motor vehicle. And children, (perhaps even more than adults) are unpredictable. You can school them into proper road crossing and cycling practices pretty thoroughly and still the unexpected will occur, and some child in a moment of carelessness or excitement will make an unpredictable dash out from the sidewalk, or clumsily ride their bicycle into the path of the unsuspecting driver. And an accident is an accident. It brings hurt and remorse no matter who is guilty.

So folks, wherever you drive, whether it be in Wainwright or any other centre where children frequent the street why not take just a little more care? The little time you save in rushing down the street with your car just a little beyond control won't make a great deal of difference a few years from now, and it's pretty nice to have a clean driving record.

THAT SEWAGE SYSTEM

Yes, it's coming, and coming nicely too, but we can give Wainwright people nothing more definite on how much will be accomplished this fall than we did in our writing three weeks ago. The Mayor gave us the information at that time, and he has nothing more to add. Repeating we may say that it is hoped to have the tile run down Main Street to the new school this fall. That's about all. Hospital street will be next in line for attention, and the homes and business along the line will be able to hook up shortly after its completion.

The progress of the sewage system depends upon many unforeseeable circumstances and conditions and wait and see is about all that can be said at the moment. However it's a lot closer to your home than it was a year ago, so please be patient.

DOES DIGNITY REQUIRE MONEY

Delegates attending a convention of the Canadian bar association last week discussed the plausibility of seeking an increase in pay for judges of the supreme court of Canada. One reason for the suggestion was the probability of the supreme court assuming more onerous duties in the near future, if the Government passes legislation making the dominion court the final judicial authority. Hitherto, it has been made possible to appeal judgements of the supreme court to the privy council of Britain.

This extra duty—if it becomes law—hardly seems sufficiently burdensome to warrant handsome raises in pay for the judges sitting on the court. It was suggested that the salary of the chief justice be raised from $20,000 to $30,000, for example. The news release also mentioned that the new scale would be more in "dignity" with the post.

We fail to see how the difference between 20 and 30 (thousand dollars) would make a person more or less dignified. Twenty thousand ought to make a person "dignified" enough. It is true that the supreme court may have more responsibility as the court of "last resort" but prior to this time any cases put before the privy council had to pass through the hands of the supreme court anyway. Why this change should justify any salary increase is hard to comprehend. It seems justice, in this case, is warped.

May we appeal?—The Lacombe Globe.

THE WORLD IS WONDERING

A few things have come to light this week in the realms of international affairs that have set the thinking world to wondering. Perhaps the most important of all has been the cooling off of the hot notes war between the Kremlin and Tito. Then Bulgaria, too, announced that she has disarmed several hundred Greek rebels who took refuge from the Greek nationalist army. Up to now it has been assumed that Bulgaria, Albania and Yugoslavia have been arming and supplying Greek rebels in addition to providing them a springboard to hop over into Greece on their destructive raids. Then we see Britain getting chummy with Russia and entering into trade agreements for foodstuffs, and these foodstuffs are largely the kind of foodstuffs Britain ordinarily buys from Canada. We don't want to become facetious, but it looks to us as if Sir Stafford Cripps has a very short memory where Canada is concerned. It wasn't Russia that provided the armies and air force units to aid in the defence of Britain. Ramsay MacDonald's government pulled this stunt on Canada after the first world war, and we have been a little cagey as to what Attlee and his gang would do when the going got tough. If the British people really wanted the liquidation of the British Empire, they surely have been getting what they asked for.—Camrose Canadian.

Editor's Note—We publish the above not because we are full agreement with it, but because it is thought provoking.

A musical comedy actress, no longer youthful, joined a road company. Business was not particularly good, and the tempers of the company suffered accordingly. Relations became somewhat strained between the star and certain members of the chorus. There came a knock at her dressing-room door.

"Who is it and what do you want?" she demanded sharply. "There's a lady in front who'd like to see you. She says she was a chum of yours when you were at school. Shall I show her in?"

"From the corridor came the voice of a catty chorus girl. "Wheel her in!"

One Jack Douglas, radio gag writer, was chatting with a sponsor after a script conference when another writer approached and said he'd like to speak to him. "Go ahead," said Douglas.

The other writer glanced nervously at the sponsor and muttered: "Not in front of the client."

"Well," said Douglas, "Spell it!"

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

by the Canadian Press

There's still no sign of a break in the cost of living, which today stands at the highest point in Canada's history.

Latest reports from the bureau of statistics disclose that the cost-of-living index, worked out on a basis of the 1926-29 period equalling 100, rose to an all-time high of 162.2 at Aug. 1. That compared with 162.1 at the beginning of the previous month.

As has been the case in recent months, food is the chief factor in the rising cost of living. The latest increase is attributed directly to the higher prices being paid for eggs and pork products. Fruit and vegetables are also higher.

In general, food costs more than twice as much today as it did in the years before the war. That is indicated by the index of 209.2 at the beginning of August, a jump of two points over July.

Other commodities, such as light and fuel, rent, clothing and home furnishings, which figure in the over-all picture of living costs, have remained relatively stable during the last few months.

Canadians are looking for a drop in living costs to come about shortly because this country usually follows the trend in the United States. The index there dropped six-tenths of a point in the latest report and in another month or two that may be the story for Canada as well.

Fishing, one of Canada's biggest industries, isn't doing so well this year. During the first seven months of 1949 the amount of fish landed in the Dominion was 13 per cent less than in the same period a year ago.

To date 597,231,000 pounds of fish have been landed, with a value of $17,484,000, compared with 685,943,000 pounds worth $10,497,000 in the first seven months of 1948.

The Atlantic coast is doing better than the Pacific with a drop of only 1.5 per cent. Out west the catch is 20.3 per cent lower than a year ago. The reason for the Pacific coast drop apparently lies in adverse weather which has battered both the fish and fishermen much of this year.

Newfoundland, which was a province since March, isn't included in the seven-month report on the industry.

Political Scene

The veterans of the Canadian political scene died last week. Senator Ian MacKenzie, 68, of British Columbia, succumbed to a heart seizure in Banff, Alta., and "Bessie" Michael, Liberal M.P. for the New Brunswick constituency of Restigouche-Madawaska, died at his home. Senator MacKenzie was a member of the Liberal cabinet from 1942 to 1948 and as defence minister for four years he directed Canada's military planning for the Second World War. He also held posts as minister of health and welfare and veterans affairs before being elevated to the upper house last year.

Mr. Michael's death brought to seven the number of vacancies in the House of Commons. Present standing in the Commons is: Liberals, 158; Progressive Conservatives, 40; C.P.F., 12; Social Credit, 10; Independent, four; Independent Liberal, one; vacant, seven; total, 229.

Senator MacKenzie's death raised the vacancies in the upper chamber to 11. There now are 74 Liberals and 15 Progressive Conservatives in the Senate.

Another member of the upper house figured in the political scene last week. Prime Minister St. Laurent's son, Senator J. A. MacKinnon of Alberta, to remain in the cabinet as minister with portfolio.

Senator MacKinnon, former minister of mines and resources, will stay in the cabinet until he has other representation from Alberta. Reason for the request is that most of the Liberal M.P.s from Alberta are newcomers to parliament. Senator MacKinnon's job will be mainly to supply expert information on subjects relating to his province.

Housing

The housing situation is one of the chief matters under discussion in government circles at Ottawa.

Steps to stimulate home ownership in the Dominion may be taken by the various governments as a result of recent discussions between reconstruction Minister Winters and premiers of the 10 provinces.

Mr. Winters returned to the capital last week and although there was no announcement, he was understood to have placed his recommendations before the cabinet.

He indicated that one of the recommendations dealt with lowering of down payment required of prospective homeowners.

Under the present National Housing Act regulations, a down payment of between $1,800 and $2,500 is required on a five-room bungalow costing from $7,000 to $10,000.

There were reports that the federal government would reduce the required down payment as much as 50 per cent. In addition, the provinces and municipalities may take complementary steps to make it easier for the average worker to become a home owner.

ITEM FROM THE RECORDS

There is a small item reported in the Financial Times of London, England having to do with the price of base metals. It will probably escape the attention of all but those directly interested. Actually it should be of wider interest because, involved in it, is the success of policies fundamental to Britain's struggle for survival. On July 12, the item notes, the United Kingdom Ministry of Supply suddenly reduced the price of base metals to conform with American prices. A short time later, and as suddenly, they had to increase the price. As the Ministry has taken the place of the Metal Exchange as distributing agent, it found itself in a bit of a jam. It had sold at lower prices and had to purchase at higher, thus involving a substantial inventory loss. That made the Ministry timid. But it did not make it realize that government bureaux which meddle in business deals do not rightly understand are likely to get their fingers burned.

Business would have accepted this lesson and sought to learn from it. The bureaucrats only recognized that, in setting a price on copper, lead and zinc, they had lost a tidy sum of the taxpayer's money, because the market had run away from them. They did not learn, except to protect themselves at the cost of everyone else.

Dear Sir:

It has been a great pleasure to the Alberta Tuberculosis Association and the Department of Health to serve the people of Wainwright and district through our Christmas Seal Mobile Chest X-Ray Unit. Our Mr. R. B. Baxter, Director of surveys, has asked me to convey to you and to your workers our sincere thanks for all the hard work you did to make the Survey so successful.

The gratitude of your fellow-citizens is due to you and to all who labored in the campaign, and I am sure they will be well aware of your notable contribution to the health and welfare of the community.

Thanks again, and with all good wishes, I am,

Most sincerely yours,
C. Robert Dickey,
General Secretary.

NOAH'S ARK

To the Editor,
The Star-Chronicle,
Wainwright, Alta.

Dear Sir:

The public press recently carried a news item stating that a party of five American explorers started at dawn on August 21 to scale Mount Ararat in Turkey in search of the remains of Noah's Ark.

Your readers may be interested to know this expedition has been undertaken by Mr. A. J. S. Smith of the Oriental Archaeological Research Expedition of Greensboro, N.C., U.S.A., because during the past forty years there has been such persistent reports by various independent persons that a might be a joint Dominion-provincial lending plan which would greatly reduce the initial down payments.

Record Tourist Year

P. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, says Canada's 1949 tourist trade is expected to break all records.

Month by month, he said, records established last year are being shattered. On a rough basis Canada should be able to get about $360,000,000 in United States dollars through tourist trade this year. That would be about 10 per cent more than last year when the figure was about $270,000,000.

and the defeat of the larger projects of recovery.

This is the way of it. The users of base metals must purchase through the government, and the bureaucrats, to protect themselves, not only demand the going price but an additional item as insurance against similar losses. The result is that the buyer cannot know the costs of the commodities he purchases. So we have the curious spectacle of a government pleading with manufacturers to expand their production for export; pleading further that they keep margins to the barest limit in order to be able to compete favorably; and, in another voice, blandly explaining that the producer may be asked to pay a premium on goods already priced and shipped. So the dead hand of bureaucracy clutches at the life of a struggling and already handicapped industry.

The rather general attitude toward this situation is that it is the boss who is getting it in the neck. Why should we worry? What is currently happening in Britain—the crucial and near tragic lack of dollars—may indeed cause the bosses to suffer. But for every ten bosses there are probably a thousand wage earners representing many more dependents. It is their country also that is trembling on the verge of bankruptcy. That's what makes this small item important.

portion of the Ark was visible in warm summers protruding out of the ice and snow which perpetually covers the peaks of the mountains of Ararat. The task of first finding and then digging this great ship from its icy bed will be a tremendous one.

Mr. Smith decided that this expedition be well equipped in every way. However, it appears that the modern wave of scepticism and disbelief in the Bible and in anything of supernatural or miraculous nature has been all too sweeping, for no one could be found to sponsor the undertaking. Nevertheless, so strong was this leader's faith in the Biblical record of the Flood and of Noah's Ark that he and four like-minded companions took photographic supplies and set off on their strange journey. They are now up in the mountains having overcome every obstacle, and any day may bring news of the success or otherwise of their efforts.

Everyone, believers and unbelievers, will be watching the results with keen interest. If the Ark is found, it will be one more of many proofs of the truth and accuracy of the Bible, and in particular of the fact of the Flood recorded in chapters 6 to 9 of Genesis. It will be consternation and confusion to sceptics, scoffers, atheists and Communists, for long has the Bible been laughed at and ridiculed by them for telling of such a world flood. Many learned and would-be-wise scholars have accepted the story of the evolution of man from some lower form of life, a theory which wholly rejects the Deluge story.

One of the hard things it may not be found. It is quite possible the Ark may again be completely hidden under ice and snow, as it seems to have been most of the time in the past. In that case, another search will have to be undertaken some later year when the summer weather has been sufficiently not to better melt the mountain's snow cap. Those who have investigated all the reports concerning the Ark have little doubt of its actual existence—or at least of some object up there both strange and of most unusual interest.

Yours very truly,
DAVID J. GIBSON.

NEW BULLETIN

ON POISON IVY

No one really wants to be on speaking terms with poison ivy. But it is not a bad idea to be able to recognize it, to know what to do if you come in contact with it, and to know how to get rid of the plants. It has a habit of growing in the least expected places, and unless it is recognized immediately, the consequences can be most unpleasant. Some people can work in or with poison ivy for years, or even handle the plants without ill effects, but sooner or later even these apparently immune individuals become susceptible. But these people are exceptional, and to the average, it is just what its name implies—poison.

Poison ivy occurs in all provinces of Canada, but it grows in greatest profusion in Ontario and western Quebec. It adapts itself to a variety of growing conditions; wet or dry, shaded or from pure sand or rocky ground, to rich woodland loam. It is especially prevalent on shores, along roadways and railway tracks, and in rocky situations. In farm land it is confined chiefly to undisturbed borders.

BANG'S DISEASE AND T.B. TESTING

Out of 1000 circles sent in to rate-payers in the M.D. Wainwright in August only 40 have been returned indicating that farmers either are too busy at this time of year to answer mail or else there is no interest in this testing. By filling out this form there is no promise that you will get exactly that number done. It only gives the Veterinarian an indication of what districts desire this service, and a list of names so a local committee can keep this work progressing. Please fill in these forms and forward them to the Agricultural Service Board Office.

HARVEST LABOUR

Some harvesters have arrived in Wainwright from Ontario and more are expected. Farmers desiring to hire one or more of these men should leave their names at this office well ahead of when they actually need them and also leave a tentative date of employment.

It takes a week to order men and have them arrive here from Ontario. GULLING THE FLOCK. Pullet for laying should be put into winter quarters this month. This is a good time to cull the flock as it is not profitable to feed hens that are crippled, deformed or unthrifty. Right from the time of hatching culling should be regular and continuous.

SEED CROP NOT LIKELY EQUAL 1948

Though it is too early to forecast the 1949 Canadian seed crop with great certainty, the first seed production report of conditions early in July issued by the Plant Products Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, is not indicative of particularly heavy crops. Drier than average conditions as well as late frosts have been general in much of the seed producing areas of Canada this season, and certain seed crops such as cereals and some legumes and grasses are not promising.

Overall production of the major kinds of alfalfa, clovers and grasses is unlikely to reach that of 1948, when all previous records were far exceeded for alfalfa, sweet clover, red clover, creeping red fescue and meadow fescue.

There is no reported reduction in acreage for alfalfa, sweet clover in the Prairie Provinces, and, if seed setting conditions are favourable there is the possibility of another large crop of seeds of both these kinds. The drought conditions in Ontario will reduce the amount of red clover and alsike clover seed harvested in that province. Not only has normal growth been seriously retarded, but the shortage of hay and pasture will force many farmers to use these crops for purposes other than seed production. Winter killing and slow growth due to dry weather in Quebec will reduce acreage intended for red clover seed production in that area. The dry conditions along with late frost may reduce the crop of both red and alsike clover seed in Alberta, which in recent years has contributed substantially to total production of both these kinds. There is not expected to be much change in the red clover seed production in British Columbia, where conditions in the producing areas have been about normal. The high price of timothy seed which prevailed in Eastern Canada during the past spring season will encourage many farmers to have as much of this seed as possible from the 1949 crop. However, against this, there is the certainty of a light hay crop over most of Ontario and Quebec, and this will be an important factor in influencing the area left for seed production. Present prospects indicate that the production of timothy seed will be less than average.

Dry weather and drought in some areas of the Prairie Provinces will have a serious effect on the total production of brown grass, crested wheat grass and creeping red fescue. At this time prospects for these seed crops are not good, and any recovery is unlikely. It is thought that the heavy frosts in late May did considerable damage to the Kentucky Blue Grass seed crop in Manitoba, and the ultimate yield of seed will be reduced. Reports indicate that the Canada Blue Grass seed crop in Ontario will be about average.

BORON IN MIXED FERTILIZERS

Some Canadian soils are showing deficiencies of lesser plant foods or minor elements. Boron is one of these elements. Most crops require a very small, quantity of boron for satisfactory growth, but care must be taken when applying boron as it is one of the elements, when used in excess, that is toxic to plants. Boron is used quite extensively now in the orchard, root and hay crops. Besides producing healthy growth it corrects such disorders as corky core in apples, brown heart in turnips, the yellowing and falling off of alfalfa leaves. When used on alkaline soils it becomes insoluble and not available for plant use as should be applied by spraying.

When mixed fertilizers include boron, the container should be labelled with the active element boron—stated in pounds per ton—says G. W. Mitchell, Associate Chief, Dominion Department of Agriculture. This may be a little confusing to the farmer, as most of the recommendations on rates of application are based on pounds per acre of boron. Boron is one of the materials from which the element boron is derived, and approximately eleven (11) pounds of boron contains one (1) pound of boron. So you can see how little boron the plant requires when the recommended rates of application range from 20 to 60 pounds of boron per acre (2 to 6 lb. of boron) depending upon the kind of crop for which it is recommended. Two to three pounds of boron per acre may be very beneficial for some crops, whereas six pounds may be toxic. However, a minimum quantity of one to two lbs. per acre of boron may be beneficial to most crops.

USE D.D.T. NOW

To combat the plague of houseflies so prevalent at this time of year, DDT offers a most effective and economical weapon, says W. Lobley, Supervisor of Crop Protection. Mr. Lobley warns, however, that the right form of DDT must be used for the purpose intended and the poisonous properties of the chemical kept in mind.

The most important factor in any fly control program is sanitation. Yards kept free from manure piles, removal of old stack bottoms, removal of feed and other rubbish from under feed racks, and proper disposal of garbage—all make for better and cleaner living and prevention of fly development. Despite every effort to prevent fly breeding there will be some survivors. This makes action necessary against the flies themselves. The use of DDT as a spray is the solution to this problem.

Application of a residual form of DDT (wettable form) is recommended for surfaces where insects roost or crawl, since the deposit remains effective for several weeks. One thorough application now may be all that is required for this season. The white deposit shows up on coloured surfaces, so use with care around the house.

Keep D.D.T. away from food and drinking water both in the house and in the barn, warns Mr. Lobley. Keep DDT out of reach of children and animals. At all times follow the directions and heed the suggestions on the container. They are there for your protection.

Little Miss Marilyn Carl celebrated her 4th birthday Sept. 8th with a nice party. Thirteen other little tots were in attendance.

The regular meeting of the Greenshields Ladies Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Rufus Carl Thursday, Sept. 8. The usual order of business was followed. There were sixteen members and five visitors present who had an enjoyable afternoon. They also had a share of Marilyn's birthday cake and other goodies.

Mr. W. C. Jackson was on the sick list last week but quite recovered now we hope.

Mrs. A. Upton has not been well for a few days and has Miss Grace Teeter helping her this week.

Residents of this district who remember Mr. Wesley Stouffer, will regret to hear of his death, Sept. 2nd, 1949, at his home in Knoxville, Ark. U.S.A. at the age of 57. Sympathies are extended to sorrowing relatives.

GREENSHIELDS

—Last Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Les Beasley and her mother, Mrs. Gosselin and sisters Theresa and June, met with a serious accident when their truck went out of control and overturned. They were driving east on the new grade east of Ed. Patterson's corner. The ambulance was called and took Mrs. Gosselin to hospital where she has had to remain. We trust she will soon be home again and that the girls are none the worse of the mishap.

Mrs. Knie of Leduc spent the week-end with her daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reed and family.

FARM PRICES BELOW POST-WAR HIGH MARK

Washington—Wholesale prices of farm, forestry and fishery products have declined during the last year in relation to general wholesale levels, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations reports.

Chief reasons were better farm production and a trend away from inflation. F.A.O. says. There were indications that the post-war peak in farm prices was passing.

"Despite the general decline, however, wholesale prices of farm products compared to wholesale prices of all products—average about the same as pre-war, with about as many countries above the pre-war average as below."

F.A.O. also reports a slackening of industrial expansion in some industrial countries.

"Although Germany, Japan and, to a lesser extent, Norway and France continued to show rapid expansion of industrial output, Canada, Denmark and Sweden reported output in early 1949 little, if any, higher than the average of 1948. In Italy, Chile and the United States output was definitely lower. The United States... shows the sharpest decline."

"The Running Thread" By Dayton Murray
Charleston was living on borrowed time when lovely Dinah Corley stepped from the immigrant ship, on which she was an unwilling passenger, into pre-war gaiety of the city in 1928. The strange sights and sounds of the Southern city bewildered the gentle Irish girl, and she was lonelier than ever for her Galway home and for the young Redcoat soldier her father had refused to let her marry.

But a new life began for Dinah when Morry Bay found her alone on the wharf and took her to the mansion he called home. There Morry's gracious mother offered Dinah a new chance for security as the companion for her young daughter.

NEWS & VIEWS OF TOWN AND DISTRICT

BORN - To Mr. and Mrs. H. Piquette of Wainwright, at the Wainwright Municipal Hospital on September 5, a girl.

BORN - To Mr. and Mrs. W. Haynes of Edmonton, at the Wainwright Municipal Hospital on Sept. 10, a girl.

BORN - To Mr. and Mrs. W. Skinner of Wainwright, at the Wainwright Municipal Hospital on Sept. 12, a boy.

Mrs. Fred Lepper returned home last week after spending a vacation visiting friends and relatives in Vancouver, Victoria, and Los Angeles, Cal.

Mrs. E. B. Nordstrom and Lyn returned home recently after spending three months vacation visiting with Pat's father, Mr. O. L. Vardy in her homeland, Newfoundland.

Mr. Gerald Arthur, who was driving a gravel truck, encountered what could have been a serious accident last Thursday. They were working on the Edmonton road and while loading up at the gravel pit one of the trucks rolled forward and pinned Gerald between it and the box of another truck. He was rushed to the Wainwright hospital where it was found that no bones were broken. He is out of the hospital but will not be able to return to work for some time.

Mrs. J. A. Touchette received a telephone call Sunday from Montreal informing her of the death of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Pilon.

NATIONAL GRAIN PAYS
ANOTHER PATRONAGE DIVIDEND.
Another dividend to customers, based on last season's deliveries, has been announced by the National Grain Co. Ltd.

The current payment is based on deliveries made from July 1st, 1948, to June 30th, 1949. The rate of payment this year is 1¼ cents per bushel on wheat, and ¾ cent per bushel on other grains. This payment when added to dividends made in prior seasons will total 7½ cents per bushel on wheat and 3 15/16 cents per bushel on other grains paid to National Grain customers in the form of dividends since the Income Tax Act revisions were passed in 1946 permitting such payments to be made. In addition to these dividends, the National Grain Company made payments on Oats and Barley last February amounting to 10-17½ cents per bushel on Oats and 14 1/4 cents per bushel on Barley.

WATCH THAT BEAR

That usually amiable fellow, the Canadian bear, is taking it on the chin these days. Farmers are laying a barrage of rifle fire in his path as he wanders from his forest hideout in search of food.

Bruin usually keeps away from farms and settlements and minds his own business. But spring frosts killed blueberries and raspberries in many areas and the big black fellow has been driven out of his forest.

The bear is a noted and cunning villain. He'll steal anything from pigs to root crops and the farmer whose land he has invaded has a right and a duty to kill the marauder. He should do it humanely and as safely as possible, however.

Some recent reports suggest that killing of bears isn't confined to farmers defending their crops and that the methods used are not only cruel but foolhardy. For instance, there was the recent case of a vacationist in the bush near Lake Superior who showed more courage than sense when he killed a bear with an ax when the bear was trying to escape.

Unless they are attacked bears usually run from humans. But when startled they are unpredictable and when wounded, downright deadly. Attacking a bear with an ax when he's running from you is about as sensible as backing into a buzzsaw.

Even though they are being killed off with ax and gun—more than a score were destroyed in northwestern Ontario in one August week-end—there's no chance of the big fellows dying out. Experts say there are plenty in almost every wooded section of the country and they increase in safety when they stay in their own backyards.

When they wander into inhabited country the only sensible thing to do is to shoot them quickly. Don't feed or try to tame a bear. The comical, half-tamed fellow who amuses tourists by begging for food invariably becomes a thief and a killer, and must be destroyed.

We all have a patronymic. It's our family name. Homonyms are words which sound alike but differ in meaning such as deer and deer. Peninsula literally means "almost an island".

NOT MADE FOR BEAUTY

A disposable constant-flow oxygen mask which will cost about 25 cents when it gets into mass production, is the latest device designed for the comfort of high altitude airline passengers. As the wearer breathes in oxygen, the thin plastic bellows on the mask expand and contract and exhaled gases escape through a porous paper face-piece. The mask will be effective at altitudes of from 20,000 to 25,000 feet, out zero m.p.h. scientists emphasize it is expected to perform satisfactorily above that level.

Patterson's Dept. Store was the scene of a little excitement Friday afternoon about 4:15, when the fixtures on the north wall of the store suddenly gave way and things came falling down from every direction. Luckily no one was in range of stray cans or bottles and no casualties were reported. The fixtures were none too strong and had just been filled in preparation for a busy day Saturday. With the aid of Messrs. Liard, McKay and Armistead new shelves were put in and filled ready once again for the Saturday rush.

Master Havlock Madill was accidentally hit by a car driven by Mr. Guy Torg Monday afternoon. Harvey ran out from behind Torg's truck just as Mr. Torg turned out to avoid three little boys playing on the other side of the road. If Mr. Torg had not been driving very slowly Havlock might have been hurt badly, as it was he received a cut on the head requiring two stitches.

DOG-MOOSE FRIENDSHIP

Trapper Gus Lingren of Cranberry Portage, Man., has unusual friends—a husky dog, a pup and a young moose. The moose, staggered by starvation, wandered into his camp last June. The husky nursed him along with her pups. Now the moose, a bit on the large side, is a companion to a dog, trots around after his foster-mother everywhere she goes.

Export controls on lumber have been relaxed in Canada as of Sept. 6, but it shouldn't mean higher lumber prices in this country.

The trade department said that regulations of lumber exports through quotas was being discontinued. This meant that the U.S. market would be wide open to Canadian lumber.

However, the department said it had received assurance that the Canadian market would be taken care of. If not, the government would reimpose the restrictions. Prices are much the same now in Canada as in the United States.

A WORLD POLICE FORCE — THE ACID TEST

A presentation by PROFESSOR S. MACK EASTMAN, Fellow Member: At the Annual Convention of "The Alberta Association of Local Improvement Districts and Rural Municipalities" in Calgary on March 12th, 1914, almost five months before outbreak of World War I, a young Canadian teacher of history gave an address on world affairs. Those were times of extreme tension. The speaker, as reported the next day in the Morning Albertan, made a strong appeal to his audience, composed mainly of Alberta farm people, in these words: "I call upon you to become leaders in the positive triumph of International Peace and International Arbitration, supported, if need be, by an International Police Force."

That Canadian teacher, who through out a long and notable career, many years of it at Geneva, in association with the work of the former League of Nations, has constantly sought to promote world brotherhood. He is Professor S. Mack Eastman, and he delivered in Calgary last week over Station CPAC.

Professor Eastman believes in carrying the idea of co-operation in practical form to the highest international level. Professor Emeritus of History at the University of Saskatchewan, he is now retiring to live at Vancouver. We know he will continue in public spirited activities, and we wish him many years of happiness.

Question: Dr. Eastman, we understand that you have given special attention to the idea of an international police force. Is that true?

Answer: Well, yes. From 1908 to 1911 I was a student in Paris. The drift to war was evident from the clash of competing nationalisms and militarisms.

Methods of Stemming Tide

I thought there were two main methods of stemming this tidal tide: (1) The negative way: to pose war-endangering policies at home; (2) The positive way: to strive to extend areas of peaceful order through the spread of the governmental or federal principles, as exemplified in the Canadian and other confederations.

I speculated that a good approach to the vast problem of how to co-ordinate national sovereignties might lie in advocacy of the concept of an international police or constabulary globalizing the future co-operative international political authority. The Police would be the Acid Test of the existence of the Authority.

Question: Had you got this idea from any particular philosopher or statesman?

Reading of Historical Process

Ans.: No. It was just my reading of the historical process, and private conversations with European scholars and military experts of different countries.

Question: When did you first give pub-therefore, unite force and justice, and has it so that whatever is just shall be strong and whatever is strong shall be just."

When Lefty Plans Were Technically Impractical

Through recent centuries, philosophers and statesmen have ventured on occasion to put forward lefty plans for a European or wider federation backed by the military force of the participating states. They hoped to overcome conflicting national militarisms through the pooling of power. However, until the inventions of the nineteenth century had reduced the obstacles of time and distance, these grandiose designs remained technically impracticable; today our difficulties reside, not in techniques but in the mind and soul of Man.

Canadians may be astonished to hear that the first official proposal for international policing emanated from the United States Congress in 1918. Under the impulsion of Theodore Roosevelt, both houses instructed President Taft to approach the other powers with a suggestion for a world naval police. Britain and France were feverishly displeased. The German Kaiser said "No". In the midst of the First World War, President Wilson forecasted a League army, but at the peace conference of Paris he reversed his attitude, under the pressure of home politics. For the next 15 years, France and the other neighbors of Germany prodded vainly. Continued on page ten

FURNISHED COTTAGE BUILD DURING LUNCH

LONDON—A new sort of prefabricated house which can be built and furnished in two hours is capturing interest in Britain.

It has been invented by a New Zealand engineer, Maj. Collett Holt, in order to solve the problem of housing mobile labor. The inventor calls the portable home "Terrapin" after the turtle with its house on its back.

Invited recently to have lunch with the inventor at an inn near London, journalists were shown a grassy space nearby and told: "By the time we have had lunch, a house will have been erected and furnished on that spot."

INTRODUCTION TO SCOUTING

L. A. Darnell

Two years ago an appeal was made in behalf of Scouting. An appeal made at the time by a very inexperienced boy who had his head in the clouds and no scout training to speak of. It is a wonder that this appeal was ever answered considering the incapability of the man in question. However people are essentially kind-hearted and I found myself on the verge of throwing out the appeal.

Today, with two years of scouting behind me, I again make an appeal but this time I feel capable of making that appeal a reality. To all those in the volunteer channels of scouting, I challenge you "Make Scouting a challenge".

It is not enough to merely shift your sons and daughters over to the care of Scouters and Guides. When your child goes to school you do not shove him out the door and await his return without your child's school years you neglect the teachers to do all the work necessary in growing up.

No-at the age of six and all through your child's school years you make his school training yours and if you've kept a keen interest in his advancement, your toil is well rewarded.

Scouting is essentially constructive through all the boyhood stages—Cubs, Scouts, Rovers. It produces a positive conception of what constitutes a healthy, vigorous, moral life.

A spirit of liberty exists in scouting, a liberty where reverence is the mainstay. A morality that requires imagination and warmth if it is to mould.

When the newspaper men left the inn after lunch, there was the furnished house with lounge, two bedrooms and a kitchen fitted with sink and radiators. The beds, including a baby's cot, were also made, carpets were on the floor and there were easy chairs, tables and electric light. All this was done in a little under two hours by only six men.

City health department officials had full co-operation of the national war on pests campaign committee in carrying out their first offensive against flies with the famous wartime chemical. Jeep-borne equipment made it possible for more than three-quarters of a million square feet on markets and stockyards to be sprayed the first day.

National Immunization Week in Canada

This is National Immunization Week in Canada—the seventh annual observance of an event dedicated to the health and lives of the nation's children.

Sponsored by the Health League of Canada, in cooperation with official health departments, National Immunization Week is designed to draw the attention of parents that certain diseases of childhood are preventable but, despite this fact, these diseases—diphtheria and whooping cough—are still taking toll among Canadian children.

For instance, whooping cough took 125 lives in 1945 and diphtheria claimed 55.

The wisdom of proven immunization procedures—such as toxoid to prevent diphtheria and whooping cough vaccine to prevent whooping cough—has been in a steadily decreasing annual Canadian death toll from these two diseases, but, as the Health League of Canada points out, the battle will not be won until there are no cases and no death toll.

Just as smallpox has been wiped out by vaccination, so can diphtheria be eliminated by toxoid. In the case of whooping cough, the preventive is a vaccine which provides protection in 90 per cent of all cases rendering the disease much less severe in the remainder.

At the same time, we cannot let down our guard against smallpox. The vaccination procedure must be continued if we are to enjoy continued immunity from what was once one of the world's greatest scourges.

National Immunization Week is merely a means of emphasizing the value of immunization as a major part of any child health conservation program. It is designed to give impetus to the never-ending attack on diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox. It is everyone's duty to support Canada's health officers in this work.

CROWDED OUT

GRANUM, Alta.—One of the latest Hutterite migrations was caused by overcrowded living conditions in this southern Alberta district. Half of the Hutterite colony near here moved to Wainwright and have built new homes there.

Medical experts have known that rats could be killed by feeding them DDT. But in the Georgia experiment the DDT wasn't fed directly to the rats. The report said the rats dragged food through it, however, and they accidentally scattered some of the dust in their drinking water.

Kills Parasites

DDT is used in rat-infested places to kill the rats. These parasites carry such diseases as bubonic plague and typhus.

The health service report said not so many rats would be killed by DDT when infested places are dusted, as were killed in the controlled experiment if it is reaching food and water.

When the health service dusted it was almost impossible to find all the "runs" the rats might use to reach food and water.

But a study was made of one infested area that was dusted and the bodies of 25 rats were found. Autopsies showed their organs contained DDT and this was the cause of death.

Months ago the department of agriculture took precautions to prevent the appearance of DDT in food for human consumption.

It has warned dairymen not to use the insecticide on dairy cows or in dairy barns. It also has cautioned

Edmonton Wedding Of Interest Here

The chapel in the University of Alberta, Edmonton, was the setting for a wedding ceremony Thursday afternoon, when Miss Viola Voss, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Voss, Marden, Sask., became the bride of Warwick A. Bleuch, son of Miss A. Bleuch and the late Mr. Bleuch of Edmonton.

Baskets and vases of sweet peas, asters and scented cacti decorated the chapel and the pews were marked with nosegays of sweet peas in pastel shades tied with bows of white ribbon.

To the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. J. Victor-Dodds, the bride entered the chapel with her mother, who gave her in marriage. For her wedding the bride chose an afternoon dress of angel rose silk crepe with three tiered skirt and low cut neckline. Her corsage of Tullman and American Beauty roses was centered with white Fleur De Mar, her only jewelry was a cameo necklace, a gift from the groom. A rose trimmed picture with black and white lace handkerchief completed her ensemble.

The matron of honor Janet Langman Bleuch, wore an afternoon dress of silver crepe silk crepe with white eyelet embroidered hat and white lace mitts. Her corsage was Sweetheart roses and pale blue baby's arms.

The bride's minister chose for the occasion a dress of autumn brown crepe with hat and gloves in harmonizing shade, she wore a corsage of roses.

The groom was attended by his brother, Walter Bleuch of Edmonton.

At a dinner attended by the bridal party, the bride presented her matron of honor with a bracelet jeweled clipper mother with a pearl drop necklace and the groom with a ring handled carving set. The groom's gift to the bride was a bracelet jeweled clipper necklace and to his best man he presented a Ronson lighter.

For her going away costume the bride wore a brown and white check suit with pine green accessories. The couple left later for a honeymoon at Bala Beach and Jasper before taking up residence in Edmonton. Both are graduates of the University of Alberta.

to the tragic schism between east and west, the Russians rejected the essential proposals of the other four permanent members of the security council, during 23 months of fruitless wringing.

Live Small Symbolic Guard

Despairing of any immediate fulfilment of the charter, Mr. Trygve Lie suddenly projected upon the Assembly's screen the image of a small symbolic guard or constabulary subject exclusively to the Security Council - a type of political concept that the present writer has toyed with since 1918 and that military experts discussed informally at Geneva until the darkest ling scene quenched their hopefulness.

Fifty volunteers, forerunners of this projected guard, went to Palestine last autumn - about three years too late!
The embryonic world police would be recruited, paid, and uniformed under authority of the United Nations (our nearest approach to the far-off ideal of world government) and would serve under its flag. Though armed with "personal - emergency defence-weapons", it would rely chiefly upon its moral prestige and symbolic strength.
Should Attract Men of Highest Calibre Appealing surely to the idealistic and pioneering type of man, this microscopic world constabulary should attract volunteers of superior calibre from all the consenting member states. These each participating nation would realize that its own responsibility was engaged, while any intending aggressor should recognize in this airborne constabulary, thrown althow his path, a symbol of the ultimate power and avenging justice of half a hundred peoples.

For we can be sure that a lawless attack upon the U.N. Guard, the living servant of the Law (composed of living human beings) would bring into action supporting contingents much more surely than the violation of mere paper agreements, to which un-happily our democratic opinion remains largely indifferent when the test comes, as witness the Articles of the Covenant, and of Locarno.

Moreover, each achievement of the Guard would enhance the prestige and the authority of its creator and director, the United Nations. There is a new function to be fulfilled; there is still lacking the organ to fulfill it.

The Secretary-General's report expresses the desirability of the creation of a United Nations Guard. Again, I fear, the Russian Block will criticize the project as it did in the spring Assembly, as a device to enable Britain and the United States to interfere politically and militarily in the internal affairs of sovereign states, and to transform the United Nations into the obedient tool of the United States.
Russian obstruction in the United Nations has already led to the formation of the Western European Union, soon, apparently to be merged in the new Atlantic alliance. The same obstruction has probably ensured the formation now of the Council of Europe, vainly advocated by Aristide Briand in 1923-26, urged by Winston Churchill in recent years and presently essaying its first meeting in Strasbourg.

Should Russia obstinately refuse the Secretary-General's modest and assuredly harmless proposal for a symbolic United Nations' Guard, the chasm between East and West would yawn still deeper.

Dear Editor,
A lot of ratepayers have been won.

During the hospital board doesn't extend the hospital service to transfer of patients to other hospitals, sent there by our local doctors.
At the 1949 Annual Municipal Ratepayers meeting a unanimous resolution to this effect was passed.
Also at the conference of the F.W.U.A. at Edgerton June last, a similar resolution was passed. At this conference 80 members were present representing a great majority of the ratepayers.
Several times delegations from F.W.U.A. locals have interviewed the board on this matter, but so far the board has failed to do anything but make vague promises.
Lloydminster Hospital is paying part of the hospital expenses of patients sent to other hospitals by the local doctors. So why can we not have a similar scheme here?
A great majority of the ratepayers are strongly in favor of a scheme like this, and I think we are entitled to know why the Hospital Board thinks this scheme is not practical or why they don't do something about it. I think it will raise our taxes very little. I don't know how much it would cost the hospital district but if we say $1000 a year (which I think is a very high estimate). The hospital district assessment is about $4,000,000, this would amount to about 1/4 of 1 mill. 100 acres assessed at 11000 would be taxed about 3/8¢ or if it should amount to 1/4 mill that would come to approximately 75 cents per 1/4 section. A very small tax for the protection it would afford. I don't think many would object to that.

At any rate I don't believe the hospital board should try to keep the mill rate low at the expense of the unfortunate that have to be sent to another hospital. They have to pay our high hospital tax and then pay all their own hospital expenses at another hospital.

We would certainly like to hear the hospital board's view on this matter. Also it has come to my attention that a delegation from the F.W.U.A. attended a recent meeting of the Board and brought up this matter and for some reason this fact was not even mentioned in a statement of the minutes sent to the Star-Chronicle. We wonder —

Yours truly,
O. GREIBROCK.

States-Members. They would promise obedience to the United Nations alone. Their training would include specialized techniques. The principal duties of these constables would be the protection of delegates on mission, their archives and offices, the supervision of plebiscites, truce arrangements and demilitarized areas. A system of field units would "permit swift deployment of completely self-contained elements of a Mission's staff" and enable it "to go forward with despatch and confidence."

Headquarters would be primarily at Lake Success and perhaps secondarily at Geneva. "Availability of international protective personnel," affirms Mr. Lie, "is a sine qua non of a Mission's ability" to fulfill its functions.

The late Count Bernadotte repeatedly requested such help, but what was sent was too little and too late. The experience of recent missions to Palestine, Greece, the Balkans, Korea, Indonesia, India and Pakistan all proved the need for protective and technical personnel. "There has not yet been a single case before the United Nations," says Mr. Lie, "where a large force would have been needed, had a small force been in existence to move in at the right time. Backed by the power of all the United Nations, such a force would command a respect that the armed forces of any one member would not win."

More states in the United Nations have names originated from Indian words than from any other language.

JAP CLAIMS WHISKEY-AGING PROCESS

Purely scientific is this round table conference which revolves around the taste of whiskey. After the conference had revolved and resolved, the committee members announced another milestone of science had been passed inasmuch as whiskey could be artificially aged to 15-year vintage single water in 12 minutes. Here, H. Hosh, president of a Tokyo pharmaceutical company, center; Dr. Yagi of the Japanese Science Council, left; and K. Narasaki, right, by their expressions the Narasaki's new aging method has at least three supporters in Tokyo.
